Special One-Night Performance Closes Year-Long Celebration of Kids Who Care's 20th Anniversary

FORT WORTH, TX – April 7, 2009 – Kids Who Care, a non-profit international musical theatre company based in Fort Worth, will present a special one-night performance of its original musical Let My Heart Sing, closing its year-long 20th anniversary celebration and its 2008-2009 Resident Company season. Immediately following the performance, and included in the ticket price, Kids Who Care will host an after-party on the patio, with music, dancing, refreshments and a sneak peek at their musical theatre summer camps. This special night of music and fun will be held on Friday, May 8, 2009 at 7:30 p.m. at the Scott Theatre in the Fort Worth Arts Center.

Let My Heart Sing is an original musical that takes the audience on a journey into a pop-up book, traveling from the colorful jungle of childhood through the angst of adolescence to find the hidden answers to some of life's most difficult questions.

“We hope that when our audience spends the evening with us, they laugh heartily, shed a tear or two, and leave the theatre completely energized and reminded that the world is going to be o.k.,” said Deborah Jung, founding and executive director of Kids Who Care. “This company of powerhouse kids inspires us all and provides the perfect evening out for couples, families, grandparents and groups of friends.”

The Kids Who Care Resident Company is an audition company of more than 70 children ranging in age from six to 19. The Resident Company performs locally, nationally and internationally each year, September through May. Past performance locations have included New York, Los Angeles, Italy, Germany, Washington, D.C., Orlando, Chicago and Nashville, as well as many regional venues.

This one-night presentation of Let My Heart Sing will run Friday, May 8, 2009 at 7:30 p.m. in the Scott Theatre at The Fort Worth Community Arts Center, 1300 Gendy Street in Fort Worth.
